Summary

I am a visual artist and photographer based on the Tyendinaga Mohawk Territory in southeastern Ontario, Canada. Through photography, I explore themes of nature, Indigenous cultures, spirituality, history, and humanity's relationship with Mother Earth. My work ranges from contemporary and historic landscapes to cultural sites in both Canada and Europe, examining the connections between place, identity, memory, and the human experience. Through both personal and project-based work, I strive to create images that inspire reflection and foster a deeper appreciation of our shared environment and heritage.
